

Australian Death Notification Service

Let us help you.

Save time and let us help you contact multiple organisations.

The death of someone close to you can be a difficult time and there can be a lot to organise.

The Australian Death Notification Service lets you choose multiple organisations to notify so you only need to tell them once.

Free service, available nationally

Reduces time and effort

Can be completed anytime, anywhere

Why use the service?

The Australian Death Notification Service is a free service supported by the Births, Deaths and Marriages registries across Australia to make challenging times a bit easier.

You can notify multiple services, including financial, insurance and superannuation institutions, telecommunications and utility providers, government services and more.

How the service works?

Enter the details of the person who died

Details are checked to confirm the death has been registered

Enter your details as the notifier

Choose which organisations to notify

Your selected organisations are notified and will contact you within 10 business days.

Scan this QR code to begin the process:

deathnotification.gov.au